

METEOR IN FIERY DASH OVER NEW ENGLAND

What New England saw when a streak of fire flared above the glow of sunset, leaving a luminous trail, was probably an unusually bright meteor, according to Dr. Edward J. Flaherty, an authority on meteors, now engaged in a special study of the phenomena at Harvard Observatory. The meteorite likely seen throughout New England and New York State may be the type of brilliant meteor that leaves a trail that lasts for half an hour, he said.

USE LESS COAL WHEN YOU LOAD UP TOMORROW

Weather Man Says New Year Will Be Warmer at the Start, Anyway

Boston and New England will shiver for another day and then, about tomorrow, will come a well-come soaring of the mercury.

Take Ontario and the regions north of it can be blamed for the reid of the cohorts of cold last night, just when it seemed that the backbone of the cold wave had been broken.

Seven o'clock this morning showed the minimum temperature, the reading at the hour being but 13.

While the forecaster doesn't care to predict for too many hours ahead, it appears that 1921 will come in without any terrible cold or storm.

Vermont and Maine were particularly cold last night. Northfield, Vt., showed a minimum reading of 15 below zero and Greenville, Me., 4 below.

of Girl's Pleadings

When her tearful plea to Judge
Joseph R. Churchill, in Dorchester Court today, failed to save her fiance, Lawrence Reed, twenty-three, of Churchill Lane, from a term in the House of Correction, Vera Scottie of Albion street, South Boston, became hysterical and threw her courtroom into confusion.

Reed, with two others, John Giddens, twenty-one, and Frank J.
Howard, thirty, both of Dorchester, were sentenced to six months in the House of Correction after being convicted of gun point after a two-mile flight in a stolen car.

The machine in which the trio had been arrested by Charles W. Freeman of Idaho street, when the men drove off in the car, which had been standing in front of his home, Greenman gave chase and encountered Patrolman William J. Finnegan of the Morton Street Station. Finnegan handed a passing car and caught the fugitives.

Reed told the court that he had intended to be married next month and asked the court not to interrupt their wedding plans.

175 POUND CAKE FOR MOTHER GOOSE TEA

This pretty confection baked for guests of the first Mother Goose Tea, at Filene's restaurant, rapidly vanished within some 700 parents and children, who pronounced its 175 pounds of goodness perfect. It was served by Mrs.
Katherine Hall, "Queen of Hearts"; Mary Russell, "Little Bo Peep"; Miss Evelyn Goldberg, "Little Boy Blue"; Betty Foy, "Tommy Tucker"; Jesse Kendall, "Little Jack

JORDAN MARSH JUBILEE SETS CALENDAR BACK 75 YEARS

With a blare of trumpets, a coach and four—a picturesque scene of yesterday—with driver, postillion and passengers attired in the now quaint costumes of the "fabulous fifties," swung up Beacon Hill today and came to a dashing stop in front of the State House.

Waiting to greet the equipage of long ago was Governor Alvan T.
Fowler, who accepted for the people of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts an invitation extended to them by B. G. Hawkins, store manager of the Jordan Marsh Company to celebrate a series of exhibitions marking the observance of the seventy-fourth anniversary of the founding of the store.

In accepting the invitation to survive in the observance, Governor Fowler praised the service which the store rendered the community for the past three-quarters of a century and wished it and its executive and employees many more years of welfare.

From the State House the strange caravan went to the City Hall.
Riosts crowded with traffic were crossed with a bare of the tal-lows and, police escorting in wonder to watch, a police escort guided the coach along the route which took it through the downtown business section.

CALL ON MAYOR CURLEY

In school street a large crowd watched the party exit the coach and enter the City Hall, where they were escorted to the chambers of Mayor Curley.

The Mayor was just about to accept a historic relic in the form of a gavel made from a panel in the old Faneuil Hall, which was presented to the city by the Sons of the American Revolution by Colonel Frederic G. Bauer, Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Bates and Benjamin M. Johnson of that order.

The Mayor combined the ceremonies, and after giving thanks to the Sons of the Revolution for their group of the visitors about him and gave a short address in which he said that he hoped to be as great a benefit to the community when he was seventy-five as the Jordan Marsh store had proved to be. He said he realized how felt to pass the half-century mark and was looking forward to his seventy-fifth birthday with the hope that he would gain in both wisdom and service.

AT SUDBURY TOMORROW

After leaving the City Hall the coach and its party made a brief tour of the city, ending up at the store. Tomorrow the party will go to the Wayside Inn at Sudbury, where a revival of the old-time customs of Massachusetts will be staged.

Those in the party on the concourse: R. G. Hawkins, store manager; F. W. Walther, head floor superintendent; John Conway, cashier's department and one of the oldest in point of service in the party; Miss C. J. Fuller and Miss Annie J. McNulty, both members of the store's quarter-century club; Norman Walters, executive training course; Miss Ruth Hick-ins, training division; Miss Marjorie Bunker, employment division; Mrs.
Ruby Smith, furniture floor, and Miss Maudie.

Storm Off Florida

Swampscott relatives and friends of the brothers, E. Kinsman Banks and Henry Banks, who were feared stranded at the prospect of perils in a storm off the Florida coast, were overjoyed when a report from Miami announced that their brothers with five passengers had arrived in port today with all on board safe.

The Banks brothers, with five others, started on a fishing trip in the night launch, the Lady Grace, on Monday afternoon.

The party did not return Monday night, and no word was heard of the launch or its passengers all day yesterday. It was feared that the launch had foundered in the storm which raged along the South Atlantic Coast.

But word came that the launch had returned to Miami with her passengers. The Banks brothers went to the docks, Ala., and Capt. Harrison of the Miami Yacht Club

MRS. STATLER'S WILL DIVIDES $1,000,000

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 30 (U.S.N.B.).—The will of Mary I. Statler, widow of Elizabeth M. Statler, president of the Statler Hotel Company, disposes of more than $1,000,000 in personal property.

A sister, Melia A. Mandersbach, formerly of this city, but now residing in New York City, is left $250,000. Legally adopted children, Milton Howard, nineteen years old; Marian Frances, eighteen years old; Elizabeth Morgan, eighteen years old; and Elva Isteria, thirteen years old, share equally in a trust fund of $700,000.

Other provisions are a $50 a month income to Alice and Bert Mandersbach of Canton, Ohio; a $75 a month income to William Henry Mandersbach of Canton, Ohio; a $75 Buffalo.

Mrs. Helen Hinton of Canton, O., and Mrs. Vivie Mandersbach of Ann Arbor are given 100 shares of preferred stock in the Statler Company. Harold Mandersbach, Alice Mandersbach of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Frank D. Ross of Detroit, Mich., are given 250 shares of the same stock. The Lafayette Presbyterian Church is given $10,000. A trust fund of 200 shares of hotel stock is created for Robert and June Hinton, grand-nephew and niece, of Canton, O. Mrs. Statler's jewelry is to be divided between the two daughters. The residuary estate is left to the husband.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY Musical Boston Rallies to Support of Two Weeks of Grand Opera

BOSTON'S FAMOUS "OLD GUARD" OF grand opera devotees is rallying with enthusiasm in support of the coming two weeks of high operatic fare served up by Chicago's notable songbirds. There'll be many a familiar face, men and women both, of importance and standing in the large audiences which promise to make a glittering picture of each performance.

GEORGE W. BROWN, venerable and distinguished opera goer and guarantor, has his usual reservations and will be seen at each performance with the very front of the orchestra, in Row A. He is a consistent entertainer, and always brings a group of friends to share the treat.

FRANK REEDER, another opera devotee, to whom musically inclined Boston owes a debt of gratitude for his artistic contributions, will be nearby. He, too, has reservations for every performance of the sixteen, in Row B, on the aisle.

ALSO OF THE "OLD GUARD" identified with an opera history in Boston there is Mrs. John Chipman Gray, whose name will adorn the small gold card for Box 46, those of Mrs. George Packard Gardner and Mrs. George Moore.

MRS. J. MONTGOMERY HEARS, also of Boston's "Old Guard" opera phalanx, prefers orchestra and balcony seats to places in the glittering horseshoe. Mrs. Sears—as in former seasons—has orchestra and balcony reservations which she shares with various music loving friends.

HER DAUGHTER, Mrs. J. D. Cameron Bradley, does likewise, following her mother's gracious example in giving places. She has orchestra stalls for each performance and to a choice circle of intimates will play the hostess.

UP IN THE ULTRA BRILLIANT horseshoe an interesting young bride newly come to Boston, Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott, takes prominent place as opera party hostess. Without doubt many a forgettable will be turned her way when she makes a first appearance.

AROUND THE CIRCLE, in Box 23, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz will hold forth, ably aided and abetted in host duties by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson Holmes. The Fitz-Holmes box is a notable one, always in the gleaming crescent.

MRS. R. H. BRISTOW DRAPER will be a handsome figure among hostess duties this mid-Winter in the Draper box, after a season of mourning. During the last opera season she appeared but for the briefest of glimpses when her sons, B. H. Draper, Draper, Jr., and Eben Draper, occupied the box at business.

IN THE KEYSTONE BOX of the famous semi-circle, at its very centre, that stately young matron, Mrs. E. R. R. Wain, will be a magnet to draw all eyes. Mrs. Wain's opera costumes, gorgeous creations of gown and wrap enhanced with the gleam of rare jewels, are always a delight to feminine eyes.

MRS. THORNDIKE DUDLEY HOWE is another handsome and well set up matron adorning the opera picture before the footlights. She will have places in the orchestra likewise Mrs. and Mrs. Edwin Stanley Webster, the N. Penrose Halliwell and the Francis L. Amory.

"Give and Take" New Policy

INDUSTRIAL democracy and earned fruit gave the prolific Aaron Hoffman an idea. Louis Mann, an actor of many roles, has embraced the idea as opportunity for further service to those who still accept the spoken drama and hope to get a laugh out of it. A blending of interests, literary and artistic, has therefore brought Mr. Hoffman's "Give and Take" to the New Park, with the vehemence and, at times, emotional Mr. Mann doing most of the acting.

PLAYERS and business never find much with any degree of security except lack of the footlights and even there the glamour of the drama, if it is usually a good one, is a good one. For support Mr. Mann has the usual rule and Mr. Mann has the usual rule and Mr. Mann has the usual rule.

NEW POLICY

INNOVATIONS are always the rule at the Metropolitan. The newest change in policy at last house is the shifting of the opening day of each

Mr. Mann's new bill from Monday to Sunday.

The change will go into effect next Sunday with the first presentation here of "The Wanderer."

Such a change is made, we are told, to facilitate the routing of John Murray Anderson's stage presentations, which, hereafter, will be produced in New York and then sent on tour. The new "The Wanderer" is based on the Biblical parable of the prodigal son. In the past it has been William Culler, Mrs. Greta Nissen, Ernest Torrence, and Walter Henty. Bible stories based upon the results attained by "The Ten Commandments" and now to be followed with "The Wanderer" appear to be doing very well on

CAPPER FOR BIG 'IF' IN WORLD COURT PLAN

Kansas Senator Wants First to Know That the United States Is Well Guarded

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in former years, declared that while he favors the World Court, he is definitely not in favor of the present form of the resolution before the Senate, aimed at opening the United States to the influence of the League of Nations. He believes that there should at least be a provision for the protection of the United States in the event of a world court, and that the United States should be well guarded.

BOY TURNS ON DAD WHO FLED WITH TOYS

Youth Star Witness for Mother in Support Case; Once Reconciled Pair

Once the angel of reconciliation between his father and mother, eight-year-old Joe Connamon played a different role today when he took the stand in Middlesex Probate Court to testify against his father, Joseph.

Mrs. Annie Connamon brought suit against the father for separate support, and the youngster was star witness for his mother. He had of seeing his father beat his mother, throw a fist at her, and chase her.

In court, according to the charge against Connamon, he deserted his wife and son, taking the boy's toys with him. For four years Joe had no contact with his father, who wrote a hostile note to his father, asking him to send back at least the little boy, and he desired more than all else to see his father.

The boy so touched the father's heart that he returned to his home, was reconciled to his wife, and the three were happy.

They were happy until September last, when, according to the mother and her son, Connamon again left them.

The little fellow made a pathetic picture on the stand. Once he broke down and cried.

The father said, in his own defense, that his wife was no housewife, and that he had never seen a word in her hands. He admitted he had sent his son no toys for Christmas.

The case was continued six months. Connamon is to pay his wife $15 a week in the meantime, February 2.

Bodies Found in Boxes, One in Lowell and Other in Lawrence

Merrimack Valley authorities today were busily engaged investigating the murder of a baby in Lowell and possible slaying of another in Lawrence.

In Lowell, the body of an infant was found packed in a box in the cellar of a tenement house near the Allen street bridge. Medical Examiner Marshall L. Allen, after an autopsy, reported it a case of infanticide and a search was begun for the mother and others who might have been implicated in the death.

The Lawrence tragedy was revealed when the skeleton of an infant was found in a box in the cellar of a tenement house, wrapped in a paper bearing a date of nearly a year and a half ago.

The report of Marshall L. Allen, who said he would report the case to the District Attorney, Arthur R. Boardman, for investigation.

It is believed the infant was about ten days old when it was slain. A handkerchief was found about the child's neck.

MARY PICKFORD'S MOTHER TO UNDERGO OPERATION

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Charles Pickford, mother of Mary Pickford, is to undergo an operation for the removal of a tumor, and as a result the American trip of the actress and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, has been postponed. It is announced here. They were to have sailed from New York, January 2.

HOLD MAN AS CHURCH LOOTER

Hoxbury police believe they have in the man one of the subscribers of the "Hoxbury Journal," who has made four churches the objects of his attacks in that district recently.

Richard Harris of Hurley street, Hoxbury, was held in Hoxbury Court today until January 9 on a charge of breaking and entering the Twelfth Baptist Church on Shum street.

The church was entered by false keys, and then the door of the sanctuary was forced. Furniture valued at $500 was taken from the church, placed on a team waiting outside in broad daylight, and carried away.

One of the main witnesses to the robbery of the furniture was a man named Harris, who was taken from the church, placed on a team waiting outside in broad daylight, and carried away.

The case was continued for investigation by the police.

Deputy Sealer Promoted

Shore Patrol today announced the promotion of John J. Martin from deputy to chief deputy sealer of vessels and motorboats.

GRANDSON HELD AS SLAYER

Chicago, Dec. 29 (U.S.N.S.)—Killer, who, after hatching to a pulp the head of Albert Nodding, sixty-five, a successful newspaper contractor, are believed to have washed the body, buried it in fresh clothing and a new overcoat and carried it a quarter of a mile from the scene of the murder, were today held by police here today.

Two hours after the body was found in a lonely spot on the prairie south of the city, four men, Louis and Leopold killed little Walter Paddock in 1924. Fred, four, was a grandson of the victim, was under arrest and a district attorney for his part.

Young Nodding was arrested in the act of slaying the victim, was identified by the slain man's wife. A neighbor of the young man's automobile revealed, while still in the car, was found (name) and a bit of what was believed to be a human skull was found in the car.

The case was continued for investigation by the police.

Gilded Kisses by BEATRICE BURTON

A Real Life Serial of Love and Temptation in the Mad Whirl of Boston Business

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. Both of them work for Dexter & Co., big Congress street bond firm.

Flossie is engaged to SAM JESSUP, secretary to HILARY DEXTER, the head of the company.

Mary Rose is stenographer for JOHN MANNERS, the sales manager, and is in love with him. But he is engaged to DORIS RHINO. And so she can't make up her mind whether to keep on working for him after he marries Doris, or to try to forget him, as the wife of TOM FITZROY, a young doctor, who wants to marry her. She finally tells Tom she won't marry him because of her love for John Manners.

Flossie is carrying on a flirtation with Mr. Dexter. When the girls' mother is out of town Flossie entertains Dexter at the house. Mary Rose comes home from work to hear the news of his visit from the neighborhood gossip, AUNT RENEY BLAIR. When she goes into the house Flossie shows her a sapphire ring that Dexter has given her, "because they're the color of my eyes," she says. Mary Rose returns the ring to Dexter, and when she comes back home she finds Flossie and Alice James packing up Flossie's clothes, as she has made up her mind to leave home and share Alice's Queensbury street flat.

Mary Rose persuades her not to go, the quarrel is patched up, and weeks go by, when the older sister is sure that Flossie is not seeing Dexter. And then one day, a trick of crossed wires, she hears the two of them talking over the office phone.

(Now Go on With the Story)

CHAPTER XVIII

"No, but I thought you were an idiot with me," Flossie was saying in her clear, peevish voice. "Do you realize that it's all of six weeks since I've seen you or heard from you?"

A long pause. Then Dexter's voice.

"Well, I thought you didn't want to see me, after you sent back my ring. That was a silly thing to do, Flossie. You knew I wanted you to have it."

"I didn't want it back," Flossie answered quickly. "My sister took it away from me that night, wouldn't let me keep it. She said if you had any sense to give away, you ought to give them to your wife."

At the mention of his wife's name, a new note came into Dexter's voice. "Let's not talk this over on the phone, Flossie," he cut in, nervously. "Some one may be listening in. I'll tell you what to do—you meet me at four this afternoon at the—"

And then, to Mary Rose's annoyance, she was cut off.

She hung up the receiver, and leaned back in her chair, staring thoughtfully into space.

"There's really nothing more I can do," she made up her mind. "I've done everything I can to make Flossie behave herself—and it's no use."

Then a vision of her mother photographed itself on her mind's eye, the little hardworking, blue-eyed mother who wanted life to be so much more kind to her girls than it had been to her.

Mary Rose knew that she would be heart-broken if the black wing of scandal ever brushed against Flossie. And this love affair between the girl and Hilary Dexter was exactly the sort of thing that led to terrific scandals, the kind that found their way to the front page of newspapers.

With a shudder, Mary Rose remembered headlines she had read.

POTATOES RATE BOOST UP AGAIN; $1 A PECK

Cauliflower, Celery, Oranges Drop in Hub Produce Market

It's all according to your taste, of course, but if you are strong for cauliflower, celery and oranges as your heartiest foods the rising trend of prices will not disturb you.

But if you demand enrichment in the form of potatoes (turkey), potatoes, cabbage, poultry, vegetables and fruit—prepare to decide down here, for prices of these are soaring again, with potatoes in the lead.

Potatoes leaped up ten cents a peck today on the heels of an announcement that prices at the warehouses were rising. A survey of the market shows that 75 cents to $1 will bring a peck into the house of the buyer.

But that isn't the half of the potatoes—or the half of the other things considered necessities on a well-balanced table. In 100-pound bags, potatoes were selling a year ago for $1.15 the hundred, while today they were bringing $4.75 for the softest hundred. That's a jump in price of 313 per cent, and you can figure it out for yourself.

Cabbage hasn't gone quite so badly, keeping its jump to five cents a ton today. But who could eat a ton of cabbage?

Other prices quoted at the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange are: Cranberries, half barrel, $2.50 to $2.75; as compared to $2 and $2.50 last year. Butternut, 51 cents; 45¢; a pound in 1925, sweet potatoes were 2.15 to 2.50; as compared to 1.25 and 1.50 last year.

Let us see how 1925 is now 12.50 to 14 and was $1.50 and $2.00. Tomatoes are scarce and expensive this year, selling at 35 cents a pound, while last year they were 15 cents.

RATE BOOST BRINGS BIG PROFITS

$1,107,005 of Earnings Going Into Dividends; Plan $5,986,346 Improvements

Opening under increased rates in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Vermont, the New England Telephone & Telegraph company made net earnings of $2,086,000.09 in the two months of October and November.

Financial results of these two months, under public scrutiny, also reveal that of these earnings $1,107,005 was set aside to be paid out to stockholders in dividends at the recently reduced 4 per cent. annual rate.

Invest charges amounted to $550,847, leaving $1,556,158 to add to surplus for the two months.

The telephone company also announced today that expenditures of $5,986,346 is to be made for new construction, and that the total cost of new construction during 1925 has been approximately $19,000,000.

Massachusetts will come its full share of the new construction now contemplated, a large part of it being an installation of additional main-switching central stations in Greater Boston, including one in Brighton and one to be known as Hancock.

The expenditures of $5,986,346 will be as follows: Massachusetts, $4,257,124; Rhode Island, $1,250,000; Maine, $251,184; New Hampshire, $170,257; Vermont, $127,857.

The scope of new construction in Greater Boston, in addition to the automatic brightening and Hancock central stations, which will cost $1,871,191 and $1,871,191, respectively, include $172,500 for underground and overhead cables and conduits between Jamaica and Milton central offices, and $144,000 for cables connecting with the Haymarket exchange.

ALMA GLUCK SELLS HOME FOR 100 PER CENT. PROFIT

New York, Dec. 29. (A.P.)—Mrs. Emma Zimbalist, known on the opera stage as Alma Gluck, revealed today that she had sold her home at No. 101 East 72nd street at a profit of more than 100 per cent.

Mrs. Zimbalist bought the place in 1919 on the residue from more than 1,000,000 reproductions of a single phonograph record, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

Overcoming the vigorous opposition of her voracious husband, who maintained that "we have no cash," she said, she sold down at $127,000.

She spent $72,000 renovating it in conformity with the tastes of herself and Mr. Zimbalist. Last October contracts were signed for its sale to Jerome C. and Mortimer H. Meyer and Abraham S. Kugel at a price of $120,000, she said.

CARDINAL MERCIER IS RECOVERING RAPIDLY

Verona, Belgium, Dec. 29 (A.P.)—The physician attending Cardinal Mercier, aged private of Belgium, who underwent an operation for a lesion of the stomach, found his condition so good today that they believed their anticipated convalescence, until afternoon, was possible in spite of his illness. It was said unofficially that the cardinal had spent a good night, that he was able to get some sleep and that his general condition was the normal one following such an operation.

The letter, written on the letterhead of the Barre Limestone Company of Boston, Douglas Lawson, manager, and dated July 29, 1924, read:

"Dear Sir: This is to formally notify you that we, Douglas and Arnold Lawson, sons of the late Thomas W. Lawson, have taken over the estate of the late Thomas W. Lawson, and are now in possession of the same."

"We have our intention on the belief that such a sale would be detrimental to the interests of the estate, to us individually as the heirs at law, and a violation of our rights as trustees to the creditors."

"We therefore hold you as trustees responsible, and all other parties in the sale responsible for any damage accrued in the sale of Dreamwold, and we shall take such legal steps as will seem to us most fitting to meet the situation."

"Signed—DOUGLAS LAWSON."

Later, according to Trustee Fogg, he received another letter to the same effect from Douglas Lawson, and also letters from Attorneys John P. Freney and Thomas Mahoney representing the brothers.

As a consequence, he said, the Lawson withdrawal from the sale and the $2,086,000 deposit were given back the $2,086,000 deposit. Fogg said he gave this deposit back on advice of counsel, though he actually believed it belonged to him.

TRUSTEE TELLS OF 'THREATS'

H. P. Fogg Accuses Douglas and Arnold of 'Meddling' in Efforts to Settle Estate

Brookline, Dec. 30.—Douglas and Arnold Lawson, sons of the late financier, blocked two profitable sales of the Lawson estate, Dreamwold, when they threatened the trustees of their father's estate and also the would-be purchasers with legal action if the sale should go through.

"I was brought out by letters from Douglas Lawson submitted in Plymouth County Court here, where the trustees seek instructions from the court and also an acceptance of their accounting of the estate and the sons are fighting against the acceptance of such accountings."

Statements of the boys' threats of legal action, according to Trustee Fogg, the sale of Dreamwold to Peter S. and John A. Lamont for $25,000 was blocked, even though the Lamonts had paid a $2,000 cash deposit.

Later the sale of the place to L. B. Bova was blocked by the threats of legal action by the sons.

Fogg submitted a letter written him by Douglas Lawson just when the sale to the Lamonts seemed to have been completed. Thomas W. Lawson's son said in the letter that he had also sent copies to the Lamonts.

"The letter, written on the letterhead of the Barre Limestone Company of Boston, Douglas Lawson, manager, and dated July 29, 1924, read:

"Dear Sir: This is to formally notify you that we, Douglas and Arnold Lawson, sons of the late Thomas W. Lawson, have taken over the estate of the late Thomas W. Lawson, and are now in possession of the same."

IF A GIRL SAYS A SUTTOR, IT DOESNT MEAN HE CANT WIN HER

The Famous Writer Gives Valuable Advice

1. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the symptoms and the context in which they are occurring.

2. The second step is to gather information. This includes looking at the data, talking to the people involved, and understanding the system.

3. The third step is to analyze the information. This involves looking for patterns, identifying the root cause, and understanding the underlying mechanisms.

4. The fourth step is to develop a solution. This involves brainstorming ideas, evaluating them, and choosing the best one.

5. The fifth step is to implement the solution. This involves putting the plan into action, monitoring progress, and making adjustments as needed.

6. The sixth step is to evaluate the results. This involves comparing the actual outcomes with the expected ones, identifying any gaps, and learning from the experience.

7. The seventh step is to communicate the findings. This involves sharing the results with the relevant stakeholders, providing feedback, and documenting the process.

8. The eighth step is to review the process. This involves reflecting on the entire process, identifying areas for improvement, and making changes for the future.

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take

It's a fact: colds and flu's lead to serious trouble. You can stop them before they start. Communion, in fact, is the best way to prevent taking a virus into the body. Medical studies have shown that Communion seals the membranes of the respiratory tract and inhibits the entry of viruses.

Most known drugs, especially as recommended by big medical authorities, do little to protect health agencies for persistent coughs and colds. Communion is the only remedy for trouble.

Communion is certain, in addition to creosote, other healing agents, to seal the membranes of the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote, which is a powerful antiseptic, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ.

Communion is a guaranteed safe remedy in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, influenza, and other serious diseases of the respiratory tract, and is an excellent prelude to any other treatment.

RED GRANGE has received $10,000 for the use of his name in advertisements.

Many of us are eagerly waiting at the news stands for current magazines, in anticipation of something like this:

"I would not exchange it for all the millions ever amassed by man."

—Harold Steiner.

WHAT? Red Grange knows the value of dollars, but there's one thing he values even more.

Long ago (back in 1910) old Jim, 32 years old, was a day laborer at the Harland House, 13 M.F. Zuppke, says my recollection.

You, too, can gain the broad viewpoint and the culture that are the tools of success in modern life.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Sometimes we may learn more from a man's errors than from his virtues.

True friendship is a kind of new growth, and must undergo and stand the shocks of adversity, before it is entitled to the appellation.

The world must have great souls, even as great spirits have souls.

Neatness and its reverse are almost a certain test of mental nearness.

A punishment lives not for him self, but for his mind.

A picture is an intermediate something between a thought and thing.

In the pursuit of pleasure, the greatest virtues sometimes lie neglected.

Self-defense is nature's oldest law.

Self-love is the greatest of evils.

While science keeps the witch, virtue is a really extinguished from the heart.

It is the wise head that makes the still tongue.

A brother's sufferings claim a brother's pity.

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M.D., Former President American Medical Association.

If you are at middle life or beyond you, probably like most people of similar age, have begun to "feel" various things, habits, customs, occupations or surroundings.

These qualities may be wise if the things you quit have been unwise, but the quitting is very likely to be unwise if you do it simply because you are "getting along in years."

Remember that people who arrive at a certain age usually get to a high degree accustomed to their habitual mode of living.

They tend to act more or less automatically. Their behavior is regulated by habit and by reminiscences of old days.

This peculiarity of advanced life is typical not only of people of low intelligence, but of those of high intelligence who maintain more or less the lucidity of their brain. The brain, like other organs of the body, gradually gets less able to work.

The intelligence languishes; there is very weakness and becomes more and more incapable to resist properly in the different impressions coming from the surrounding world.

It is well known that difficulty an old man has to acquire a new standpoint on any subject or to face a new problem in life. His activity is turned toward ideas and subjects that are repulsive to his previous views, habits and experiences. Under these circumstances, no long as day life remains the same in its broad line, habit and routine will serve as safe guides. But, the moment a serious change of his life arises, on which suggestions adoption is new conditions or the substance of new ideas, or the fulfillment of unusual duties, at once the old man's outlook will be completely changed.

Thus, one is known when an old man who still could easily find his way in the city where he spent his life was totally unable to find his way home in an unknown city.

Medical experience has shown that the mental decay, which may be very gradual in old men, becomes suddenly aggravated after the occurrence of radical changes in their life. A writer quotes the case of an old man who still was able to help his people in an unpropitious degree as regards daily work, but his mind became so confused and his mental capacity became accelerated until, in a short time, his mind became a blank.

Such facts are by no means rare. It would be a grave error," says a distinguished writer, "to regard such cases as being a mere coincidence. It is beyond all doubt, that the general activity, the new impressions, the new efforts at adjustment, are mainly responsible for these sad consequences."

The question of absolute "retirement," of quitting all old activities, in the absence of special indications to the contrary becomes one of serious concern.

While quitting other things it may be wise to quit your quitting. Copyright, 1925, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

FOXY GRANDPA BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

It was September and we were up in the woods of Canada. We had spent the Summer in a cabin (long far away from anybody, but still among many wild animals with no love or faith.

One evening as we sat by the fire I thought I had never seen Bunny so quiet, and when I looked into his little face I thought I saw a tear on his whiskers.

"What's happened, Bunny?" I asked quickly.

"Tomorrow the hunting season opens for moose."

"Oh," I said, and I knew how the sympathetic little rabbit felt for his fellow-kind.

The next morning we were out on the lake. Bunny wanted one last day of fishing and we landed him in the afternoon. Walking along the border of the lake Bunny suddenly halted and pointed to the lake. There standing in the water up to his knees was a beautiful bull moose. He was drinking and looked so contented as if he never had a longing for food.

Then like a flash Bunny pulled my trousers and I heard him catch his breath as he pointed to hind a tree which grew by the water's edge.

A hunter and his guide. He was just taking aim at the moose and I thought poor Bunny would collapse.

"Bunny" went the gun and Bunny turned his head away for a moment. But when I saw that the hunter had missed the moose I whispered, "He didn't get him," and before I knew it Bunny had sprang away and was off up the bank of the lake before I could even guess what he was up to.

Brought along the water's edge he shot—that's what he did. He was as swift as a bullet and while the man was taking aim again, he had chased the moose twice—Bunny took right straight between the hunter's legs and scared the man so that he dropped his rifle.

Then out into the water Bunny dashed—and you know he doesn't use water—and in his silent leap he took the moose of the danger. Instantly that moose gave a leap and bound out of the water and he heard his crashing through the woods in his flight.

"Bunny" came back. I rubbed his head, because it was very cold by then and I tucked him in my pocket and when we got home wrapped him
